Dear Helen

Davis Langdon engaged Goals A+N after a comprehensive tender process on behalf of a high profile city client. The submission from Goals stood out both in terms of competitive pricing and also consideration for the specific requirements of the relocation – they had genuinely thought about what the client needed and how they could deliver it.

During the build-up to the move, Goals were attentive to the multiple stakeholders involved, simplifying what could have been a complex arrangement. They were also flexible in their approach and reacted positively when some timing elements of the project changed.

The relocation itself went smoothly. There were a few minor issues to deal with along the way, which Goals covered without fuss, and their site team was a credit to their brand. The team was efficient and communicated clearly throughout the move, charting their progress and sensibly managing their time between the two sites.

Goals also actively contributed to the close out session held post-move, helping us reach a good level of maturity with our lessons learnt.

I'd be happy to work with Goals again in the future.

Kind regards
